SHUFFLE OF FASCIST LEADERSHIP DISCARDS PRO-NAZI ELEMENTS

Military Chiefs and Cabinet Members Removed By Mussolini With Probable Primary Object Of Reinforcing His Regime at Home—Relations With Great Britain Better

ROME, Oct. 31 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, in a sweeping overhauling of the Fascist leadership, today removed three military chiefs who had conducted staff talks with German officers and two cabinet members popularly regarded as pro-German.

Shuffling of military chiefs, army leaders and cabinet ministers was regarded in foreign circles as primarily designed to reinforce the Fascist regime at home.

All three chiefs of staff replaced—General Alberto Pariani of the army, General Giuseppe Valle of the air force, and Lieutenant-General Luigi Russo, of the Blackshirt militia—had conferred with their German counterparts after signing of the Italian-German military alliance last May—an alliance which no longer is mentioned in Italy.

MINISTERS AFFECTED

The two cabinet members considered as having pro-German sympathies and affected by the shake-up were Lieutenant-General Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party, and Dino Alfieri, Minister of Popular Culture (propaganda). Transfer to other posts removed them from the cabinet.

The shake-up was expected to please the Italian people. There have been widespread reports of popular dissatisfaction with the pro-German tendencies of some of the lesser Fascist leaders.

Mussolini gave evidence that he was moving with popular sentiment when in a speech three days ago he said Fascism only wanted to go forward "with the people and for the people."

The shake-up involved replacement of eight ministers and four continued on page 6, column 6

SUPPLY BOARD TAKING CHARGE

New War Organization to Mobilize Industry and Resources in Canada

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (AP).—The War Supply Board becomes constituted formally tomorrow, absorbing the Defence Purchasing Board, set up last July.

The board will mobilize Dominion industry and resources for a supreme economic war effort, with extraordinary powers vested in it under authority of the War Measures Act.

In addition to duties in mobilizing potential production and manufacturing resources of the Dominion, the board will act as purchasing agent for the British War Supplies Mission now in Canada, and will pass upon all war contracts.

Another important feature of the board's activities concerns the naval service. Far heavier responsibilities have been placed upon the Canadian navy in the present war than existed in the first great war.

SHIP CONSTRUCTION

It is anticipated all Canadian shipyards will be working at full capacity before long in construction of anti-submarine craft and minesweepers. Four large plants in Eastern Canada are under construction and are to be ready for heavy production at once.

Question of construction in Canada of larger war craft is under consideration. Since arrival of advance guards of the British Purchasing Mission its members have been studying the manufacturing potentialities of the Dominion. Result of these investigations may be reflected when the board is ready to publish the first letting of major contracts.

Military Honors For Fallen Foes

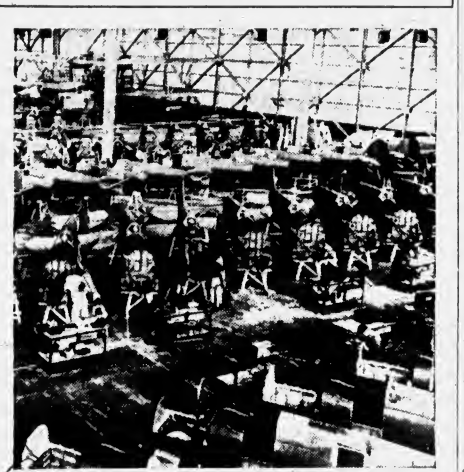

EDINBURGH, Oct. 31 (AP).—Two German airmen killed in the bomber which was downed off the Scottish coast on Saturday were buried today in Portobello Cemetery with full honors, alongside two of their compatriots.

German flags draped the coffins and wreaths were laid on the grave from the officers and men of the Royal Air Force. An escort from the R.A.F. and a firing party accompanied the cortege.

Molotov's Address on Foreign Affairs Creates New Situation for Finland

HELSINKI, Nov. 1 (AP).—Premier Vachesslaff Molotov's unexpected revelations on the Russian-Finnish negotiations before Russia's Supreme Soviet shocked officials in Helsinki, and a Foreign Office communiqué early today said his address had "created a new situation."

Just what effect the Russian Premier's address would have on negotiations between the two countries was not clear, but a delay was certain, observers said.

There was no roll call on the question, but Administration leaders hailed a previous roll call, on which they had won an unexpectedly high majority of sixty votes, as indicating a safe margin for repeal of the embargo when the final test comes.

The roll call was on a question of ending debate on the procedure to be adopted for considering the bill. The vote was 237 to 177.

Prophecies Canada's Shipyards Will Be Working to Capacity

Prime Minister Says Concentration of Air Training in Dominion May Mean Shaping of Victory on Canadian Soil

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (AP).—Concentration of the Empire's basic air training in this Dominion "may well mean that final victory will be shaped on Canadian soil," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in a broadcast address tonight.

With "Organization of Canada's War Effort" as his theme, in the second of a series of two addresses over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's national network, the

Thousands Attracted To Greater Victoria Halloween Bonfires

Youngsters and Grown-Ups Enjoy Supervised Entertainment Centres—Many Prizes Presented—Damage Reported to Be Only Slight

HALLOWEEN was fun! And thousands of Victoria, Esquimalt, Saanich and Oak Bay youngsters found more enjoyment in creating fancy and comic costumes, which they displayed to advantage at almost a dozen huge bonfires in Greater Victoria, than in wilfully damaging public property. Police and firemen worked overtime patrolling the various scenes of festivities; fireworks were lit, under observation for the most part, and no serious damage or accidents were reported to the police. St. John Ambulance Brigade men were on hand at all of the fires ready to render first aid if called upon.

Entertainers and candles, peanuts, hot dogs and apples added greatly to the attractiveness of the fires and many grown-ups joined the children to applaud the many fine costumes and congratulate the fortunate winners.

Tumblers from the Y.M.C.A. and Provincial Recreation Centre each visited three of the city fires. Events varied from pumpkin, apple and marshmallow contests to almost every type of dress competition.

ALDERMEN ATTEND
Aldermen Burgess, Giddens, representing Mayor Andrew McDevlin, visited several of the bonfires, accompanied by Aldermen B. H. O'Neil, John Worthington, W. Lloyd Morgan and W. H. Davies.

Parent-Teacher Associations and the Kinsmen Club were in charge of the six city fires. The Oak Bay fire department arranged the attraction in that municipality, while the Esquimalt Council played host to children of their own and Craigflower districts.

Saanich was served by three bonfires in different sections of the municipality. The first Tillikum River Scouts, Scoutmaster W. Clare, were in charge at Kerr Avenue and David Road; the Mount Tolmie C.C.F. entertained the children of that district near the hall, and the third blaze, near Hobbs Road, Cadboro Bay, was supervised by William Inglis.

All the fires were lit at approximately 7 o'clock and by 9:30 o'clock the majority of the children had retired but happy, had left for their homes. The night was clear and mild, adding greatly to the success of the various bonfires.

AT CENTRAL PARK
At Central Park the Kinsmen's programme was in charge of George Gurr, Jack Phillips, Ted Sanders, E. H. Harris, R. Whittington and H. Winterburn acted as judges, and W. Dillabough was master of ceremonies. Tombola prizes were given in addition to the costume prizes, a similar course being followed at the other centres of attraction.

Trustee Frank Muller acted as judge at the Cowgill and Niagara Streets fire. The master of ceremonies was P. Davies and members of the James Bay P.T.A. who helped to entertain the young fireseekers were Mrs. E. Day (convenor), Mesdames A. Stansfield, D. White, A. Whyte and D. Castelli, and S. R. Vincent, Tom Davis and J. Spellman.

Harry Halston convened the Oak Bay P.T.A. fire in Spencer Park. A. J. Stevenson was master of ceremonies. The Quadra and Burnside P.T.A.'s had charge of a large and

British Liner Yorkshire Sunk by U-Boat

Photographed from the deck of the American freighter, Independence, Hall, the British liner Yorkshire is shown sinking after being torpedoed by a German U-boat, 500 miles off the coast of Spain. abroad and Nazi tendencies at home." Kingsley O'Griffin, Liberal, seconding the appeal for annulment of the order in council restricting dissemination of news, propagation of opinion, and detention of suspects, said these "really terrifying" regulations set aside the right of habeas corpus.

"DANGEROUS RESTRICTIONS"
Referring to emergency measures, Mr. Foot declared "the most dangerous of all restrictions is that which relates to the dissemination of news and the propagation of opinion."

"It is most amazing that in a war which we are told we entered to defend freedom we should start by seeking to fetter the free expression of opinion," he said.

Herbert Morrison, Labor, declared that under the regulations "anybody the Home Secretary does not like can almost be hung, drawn and quartered without any reasonable and proper means of defending himself."

RIGHT OF APPEAL
The provision for detention of a person through executive order he described as "admittedly drastic." But he said such a person might appeal to an advisory committee. In general, he said, the regulations were based on those enforced during the first Great War.

The Government also was criticized for slowing up business letters by "over-centralization" of censorship at Admiralty race course, and for rationing coal when "over 80,000 miners are out of work."

D. M. Foot, Liberal, called for annulment of orders in council containing the regulations, declaring the nation was "confronted with a twofold danger—Nazi aggression

NEW MEMBERS INDUCED
The actual business of the House was brief. After prayers by Rt. Rev. H. B. Sexton, Bishop of Columbia, election votes were reported returned in the Vancouver Centre and Cranbrook by-elections. Harold Winch, M.P.P., and Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, M.P.P., introduced and led Mrs. Laura Emma Jamieson, M.P.P., to her seat. Premier Pattullo and Hon. G. McWeir introduced and led Arnold McGrath, M.P.P., to his seat.

The House stood in silent tribute to the memory of the late Alderman Fred Crane, M.P.P., former member for Vancouver Centre, passing a resolution of condolence to the family, after expressive tributes by Premier Pattullo, R. L. Maitland, K.C., and Harold Winch in their capacities as party leaders.

Discussion on the address in reply was adjourned. Attorney-General Wisner introduced for first reading a bill to amend the Supreme Court Act. The House set up under Captain C. S. Leary, M.P.P., its committee on standing committees; departmental reports were filed, and the House adjourned until 2:30 p.m. today, when Thomas King (Liberal, Columbia) and Glen E. Braden (Liberal, Peace River) will lead off

SOS. Starts Coast Guard To Aid Ship

BOSTON, Nov. 1 (AP).—United States coast guard division headquarters said today it had identified a vessel which sent an SOS in the North Atlantic as the 3,670-ton British vessel Coulmore, owned by the Dornath Shipping Company, Limited, by means of the letters sent which included the phrase "SSS submarine," taken to be a reference to a submarine attack.

Tropical Radio, of Hingham, Mass., said it had learned from a Canadian radio station at Campersound, N.S., that the United States coast guard cutter Campbell, 200 miles from the Coulmore, was proceeding to her side and expected to reach the scene about 8:30 a.m.

PRECIOUS YELLOW METAL IS SOUGHT

City Water Board Grants Two Miners Permission to Do Placer Work at Goldstream

Goldstream district, famous in early history of Victoria as an area where many hardy miners strove to wrest the precious yellow metal from the ground, may come into its own again in the quest for placer gold. At a City Council water board meeting yesterday morning, permission was granted to two miners to carry out placer operations in a stream near Goldstream Park. It runs through the park area and is not part of the city's watershed property.

A report on leakage of water was presented to the meeting by Clifford M. Irwin, water commissioner. Alderman John A. Worthington, chairman of the board, announced that water rates would be discussed with Oak Bay delegates in the City Hall at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

5. Asserted German and Russian relations are being placed on an increasingly solid and friendly basis.

RELATIONS WITH JAPAN
6. Announced trade negotiations would be opened with Japan and opened the door for a move by Tokyo toward stronger co-operation—possibly a non-aggression pact.

7. Gave no hint of any possible Soviet aims in the Balkans, but said Turkey, which refused a pact with Russia and signed one with Britain and France, must take note of the offer of co-operation to Japan.

By her part with Britain and France, he said, Turkey had moved into the "orbit of war," and he could not hazard a guess whether Turkey would come to regret it.

Of the negotiations with Finland, Molotov said the Soviet had urged Finland to agree to a pact similar to those recently concluded with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, which gave Russia extensive rights to station troops, warships and planes on the soil of her Baltic neighbors.

PROTECTION OF LENINGRAD
Molotov said that Russia "did not insist" on her position when Finland objected. He disclosed Finnish-Soviet negotiations now have turned to matters concerning the protection of Leningrad, Russia's Western metropolis.

Negotiations were proceeding on Finnish cession of "several dozen kilometers" of soil on the Isthmus of Karelia, north of Leningrad; the lease of a small section of Finnish territory near the entrance to the Gulf of Finland for a Russian naval base; and the exchange of some islands in the Gulf of Finland.

He declared that Russia has no designs on the strategic Aaland Islands and was not preparing demands on any other northern nation.

STATES SOVIET AIMS
Russia's aims were outlined by Molotov as:

"1. A free hand.
"2. Continued neutrality.
"3. Not to help spread war but to help stop it."

"Russia's neutrality stand was 'in no wise contradicted by the entry of Soviet troops into Poland to participate in partition of that state,'" he said.

"Our troops entered the territory of Poland only after the Polish State had collapsed and actually ceased to exist. Naturally, we could not remain neutral towards these events, since as the result of these events we were confronted with urgent problems concerning the security of our state."

Molotov, for the first time, disclosed the officially admitted Russian casualties incurred in occupying the eastern half of Poland—737 dead and 1,862 wounded.

Two-thirds of the casualties occurred in taking over the Western Ukraine, he said, adding 300 planes were among the large quantities of war supplies captured.

FEAR UPRISING
BUCHAREST, Oct. 31 (AP).—Four hundred Hungarian residents of Rumania were reported under arrest in the Cluj region tonight for planning a revolt against the Government.

Local authorities said the suspected plotters had been collecting arms and "war fund" for an alleged revolutionary uprising in event of a Hungarian attempt to regain Transylvania from Rumania.

NANAIMO CITY WILL PROTEST

Council Objects to Making Payments on Bonds in United States Funds

NANAIMO, Oct. 31.—The city council last night decided to forward a resolution of protest against the practice of compelling municipalities to make payment of bonds in American currency to Hon. T. D. Pattullo, R. L. Maitland and Harold Winch. The action was taken after discussion of an increased cost of $300.25 due to the necessity of paying interest on the city's waterworks loan in United States funds.

When Mayor Harrison gave a report of a recent British Columbia Aviation Council executive meeting, he disclosed that an effort will be made immediately by Nanaimo's new industries committee, urging Ottawa to consider flats near Nanaimo for an air base. Alderman Hindmarsh said that plans and specifications of the flats were being rushed East at the earliest moment.

The council after ordering the corporate seal placed on civic arena by-law overwhelmingly passed by Nanaimo ratepayers last Saturday, decided to go into committee to decide how the debentures should be sold and to call for plans and specifications for the proposed $91,000 arena.

The Salvation Army was given permission to place Christmas cheer pots on public streets.

NEW WAR INDUSTRIES
Replying to a letter asking for assistance to secure new war industries here, Hon. George S. Pearson suggested that a representative be sent to Ottawa to make a direct contact with the Government Supply Board and manufacturers. He said that he understood neither the Federal nor Imperial Governments intended to set up new industries in Canada at the present time, but is preparing to place or ders with firms which can furnish requirements.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Nanaimo Hospital reported tag days in April and October netting $79 and $138.

The Red Cross Society was given permission to link up in the nation-wide drive for funds, commencing on November 13.

Alderman Drake was appointed to represent the city on the Elks' Christmas cheer committee.

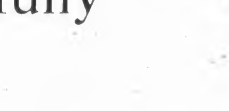

TRADES COUNCIL
All delegates to the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council are requested to be present at a meeting to be held in the Labor Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. A report of the building trades committee will be heard, and members of the building trades are invited to attend.

Lone British Fighter Brings German Plane Down on French Soil

First Action of Kind on Western Front Ends in Disaster for Enemy Reconnaissance Machine—Explodes on Hitting Ground

WITH THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Oct. 31 (CP-Reuters).—Spotted immediately it appeared over a Royal Air Force secret airfield behind the Maginot Line, a twin-engine German reconnaissance plane was shot down today by a lone British fighter which immediately took off in pursuit.

This is the first time a British fighter has been in action on the Western Front. The German aircraft was making for home at top speed, but its pursuer was on it like a shot. The engagement only lasted a matter of minutes. Shooting up from underneath, the fighter let the enemy plane have a full blast from its machine guns. It was a "straight kill." Riddled by a blast of 400 bullets, the German machine crashed to earth in French territory just twenty miles away from where it was first seen.

CANADA'S SHIPYARDS WILL BE BUSY SOON

first year many millions of dollars, and many thousands of men, will be concentrated in Canada.

"This may well mean that the final victory will be shaped on Canadian soil—for who can exaggerate the importance of this great co-operative effort in the training of men and the forging of an overwhelming air strength."

Mr. King gave a swift review of Canada's programme from the first rumblings of war to the present in an effort to "afford some idea of what is involved in changing a nation's economy from a peacetime to a wartime basis."

Operations of the navy and air force have become a paramount importance in armed co-operation with the Allies, the Prime Minister said.

As a result these two branches of the service were being speedily augmented and had already performed valuable service in convoy and patrol work on the Atlantic Coast.

"Our dockyards are, and our shipyards will soon be working to capacity," the Prime Minister said. He added that protection of the Newfoundland coast and the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon—no less imperative to Canada's security than to their own—was being carried out with fully-armed regular and auxiliary fighting ships.

The Prime Minister paid tribute to the people of Quebec, who, in a general election last Wednesday, gave overwhelming support to the Liberal party and to the war policies of the Federal Government.

"It is doubtful if Canada could have made in the first two months of the war, a more helpful contribution to the cause of the Allies than that signified by the decisive pronouncement of a week ago," he said.

"Certainly nothing which has happened in our country since Confederation, has contributed more to Canadian unity. Upon the maintenance of national unity, more than upon all else, will depend the measure of the success of Canada's effort in the present war."

The Prime Minister gave a brief description of the various bodies created since the war to consolidate and further the military and economic effort, mobilize monetary, industrial and material resources, protect the public from exploitation and maintain internal security.

"The Prime Minister warned against the mistake of applying the same considerations to the present war as to the first Great War. Since the last struggle there had been a complete change in the technique of warfare, he pointed out, and only great sacrifice of men and money would result if the efforts then effective were relied upon now.

The Prime Minister reviewed steps taken at the first sign of hostilities to mobilize the militia, man coastal defences and set the stage for aerial defence.

"Ten thousand armed Canadians provide garrisons for our seaports," he said. "A reserve force consisting of two divisions and a number of additional units has been organized with a strength of over 42,000 men."

"The units designed for overseas service have been selected so that all parts of Canada will be represented. The force includes four French-speaking infantry battalions."

With the calling up of the Royal Canadian naval reserve and certain voluntary reserves, nearly 8,000 officers and men were on duty with the Canadian navy by the middle of September.

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY
Close co-operation and understanding between the Allies was necessary, the Prime Minister said, and for this reason Resources Minister Crear went to London, for conversations with the British Government.

"In our military service we are determined to avoid wasteful sacrifice," the Prime Minister said. "We are not concerned to make it spectacular, but we are vitally concerned to make it effective."

Turning to the economic side of Canada's effort the Prime Minister stressed the importance, sometimes overlooked by the ordinary citizen, of a constant flow of the material necessities of war.

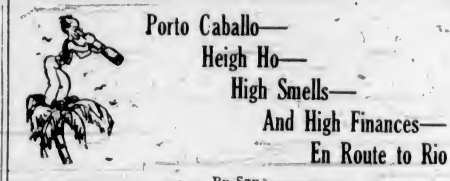

"In order to have the tremendous quantities of supplies available at the right time and in the right place it is imperative that the economic life of Canada be organized, but not disorganized," the Prime Minister said.

MUST SUPPORT GOVERNMENT
"The economic forces of the country require to be mobilized just as the armed forces are mobilized. This task can be performed in the main only by the National Government. Its adequate performance, however, demands the co-operation of provincial and municipal authorities as well as business, labor, the farmers and other primary producers, and of voluntary organizations of all kinds."

Outlining steps leading to establishment of the war supply board which tomorrow takes over the duties of the pre-war defence purchasing board, the Prime Minister said this body would mobilize Canadian resources and also let a purchasing agent for the British war purchasing mission which came to Canada September 8.

By Spy—

With the vanishing of John, so also vanished Curacao with its abundance of oil tanks, aromatic oranges, prickly mountains and smelly "night clubs."

On that day of departure, as I sat scribbling on the Sonja's palatial lounge, School Marm plumped herself down beside me and imparted that our next stop would be Porto Caballo (Venezuela) early next morning. School Marm was good that way. She always knew just when, where and how the Sonja was due for docking or departure—in fact, School Marm was a veritable cross between Thomas Cook and an alarm clock, and altogether quite a useful little person.

Hence, I gathered from School Marm's little remarks that Porto Caballo was a place of twenty thousand inhabitants, with oil as its main beverage, and from little excerpts about its climate and general character which "S.M." quoted from her little South American Handbook, I sensed that Porto Caballo would be rather hot and greasy.

Both hazards were correct. Porto Caballo proved to be as hot and greasy as pork bubbling on the spit. It took root on low swamp land, with hills crowding it in a tight horseshoe which cheated it from even the symptoms of a breeze. It looked ill and desolate. Also it seemed lazier than all towns heretofore visited. On the porches, and across doorways, and on the dirty plaza benches, people lay like slabs of smoked fish—only smollier.

The streets seemed practically deserted. An occasional car would creep round a corner, and stray wagons, dragged by small moulting donkeys, would joggle by sleepily. Although the town sprawled over at least a square mile in area—including lawns and bare patches of grey, baked mud—there seemed to be very few shops and apparently no business district. The whole place was shuttered, tomb-like, as if in mourning for some unending funeral. It was tremendously smelly. No, it was not a nice town.

My first experience there concerned the exchange of money, which never materialized. For there appeared to be no banks there, and after prowling around those deathly streets for about half a luckless hour, I finally decided to disturb a certain huddled-up person, whom I discovered with an unsheathed sword across his knees, snoozing in the doorway of a dark, ramshackle, official-looking building.

"He spoke no word of English, and on seeing the American 'five' that I held toward him, he just grunted. Then suddenly he snatched it, and grunted louder. Presently three dark, sulky-looking comrades shuffled up from somewhere inside the doorway, and in turn began scowling at the American bill, and grunting. Each in turn snatched the bill, stared at it, shook his head, and then snarled something in Venezuelan."

I grew slightly impatient. If not a trifle irritable, over all the pawing and grunting, and in a sort of "chop suey" of English, French, bad Spanish and worse German, strove to inform those pudding-headed fellows that an exchange from Uncle Sam's to President Gomez's currency was all that was required. Just wasted breath. They kept passing the "five" from hand to hand and grunting, and sedulously wagging their dull, dark heads. Finally I got fed up and put out a hand to try and retrieve it, but my gesture was waived loftily aside, while somebody holding the bill suddenly ducked off into the stomach of the building.

After another long wait, I professed cigarettes in hopes that such offerings might appease their suspicions or whatever was worrying them about my inoffensive American money and possibly redeem it. The cigarettes were snapped up readily enough—pocket, unfold and all—but the man inside, with my unhappy money, simply refused to reappear. I waited another ten minutes, but nothing happened. I felt fierce, but duly impatient. There were three of those black-faced hooligans all with scimitars at their sides, against one small Pale Face with nothing but a faint heart and a pencil, so even the thought of anything in the shape of a pitched battle was preposterous. All I could do was sweat and curse and fiddle with a dirty tin mug chained to a nearby drinking tap. Chimeras, knew not one particle of English, so I at least had the degenerate satisfaction of peppering them with everything hot and poisonous from my fairly fat lexicon of bad language.

In the end, I strode, fortitously away, and later discovered a steamship agent who spoke English—and even with his assistance it took a full hour of hickering and protest before that five-dollar bill was restored to its rightful owner. After that it never appeared in public in Venezuela. Just an old Venezuelan custom, I presumed, but one that was rather difficult to appreciate on such a hot and odorous day.

For the next half hour, red and fiery hot, I sat in the shops and temples, I skulked around Porto Caballo, reckoning rather bitterly, that this present business of popping up and down the Sonja's gauzypant at various decadent South American seaports was merely one of the baser forms of "joining the navy and seeing the world"—in brief, my blood-spattered pith helmet and musger-mangling Mauer were veering daily closer to an office-milky "bowler" and a rolled umbrella, while Rio was less than a

YOUTH IS SHOT ON HALLOWE'EN
J. Humphries, Glynn Road, Struck by .22 Bullet—Fireworks Injures Two

Sixteen-year-old Jack Humphries, Glynn Road, was shot in the left leg last night by a .22-calibre bullet which Saanich police said was fired by a resident of Wilkinson Road. His name was not disclosed.

Sergeant Eric Elwell, of the Saanich police, said the boy was standing in the road in front of a house whose occupant had evidently been annoyed by the Halloween pranks of youngsters of the district.

Humphries was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where it was found the bullet had struck his leg between the knee and hip and had passed completely through without touching the bone. Dr. George Hall attended.

Robert Robertson, nineteen, 1508 Gladstone Avenue, and John McBeath, sixteen, 423 Durban Street, suffered painful but not serious injuries in two accidents. They were both attended at St. Joseph's Hospital by Dr. J. H. Moore for injuries to the tips of the fingers caused, it was said, by exploding fireworks.

MINISTERED TO CHINESE

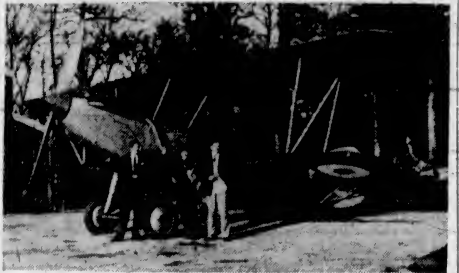

Mission Worker Was in Sinyeng When Japanese Captured City

From Sinyeng, Honan, China, Deaconess C. Johnson is a visitor in Victoria on her way to Chicago, headquarters of the Norwegian Lutheran Church's Deaconess Hospital. Deaconess Johnson has spent thirty-four years in China and will return there if her health improves, she stated during the week.

In charge of the mission at Sinyeng at the beginning of the "China incident," Deaconess Johnson has a colorful story to tell of things that happened there. Her first work was with the 8th Division of the Chinese Army, attending to their wounds and medical needs as the Japanese advanced. This was halted for a time when the Yellow River went on a rampage and stopped the approach of the invaders. A souvenir of this phase of her work is a piece of jagged shrapnel which she removed from just below a soldier's eye, and which she carries with her.

Following the occupation of Sinyeng by the Japanese, they found a

RULING WILL BE OBSERVED

Decision of Arbitrator at Bellingham Accepted by Waterfront Workers

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Oct. 31 (AP).—Federal Arbitrator Van C. Griffin ordered Bellingham longshoremen late today to load the freighter Point Ancha, and a spokesman for the C.I.O. Union said a crew would be at the dock in the morning to abide by the ruling.

The developments apparently brought to an end that phase of the controversy which threatened to paralyze the Bellingham waterfront.

The assurance that the longshoremen would abide by the ruling came from Matt Meehan, of Seattle, district secretary of the International Longshoremen's Union.

It was Arbitrator Griffin's second ruling against the longshoremen in the Point Ancha case within four days.

On Saturday he ordered them to load the steamer. Union spokesmen said they would abide by the decision, but later demurred upon an allegation of "changed conditions" on the waterfront which threatened them with possible violence.

The arbitrator said in his ruling today that he did not consider the longshoremen's failure to comply with his Saturday ruling a violation of their arbitration agreement in view of their "changed conditions" allegation.

He said however, that he had investigated the waterfront personally, and after today's testimony at a hearing here he was firm in his opinion that there were no conditions now prevailing which justified the longshoremen in further refusing to load the vessel.

Oxford Group Movement Has Ardent Adherent in Former "Y" Worker

For twenty-two years identified with Y.W.C.A. work in Mukden, Manchuria, as general secretary, Miss Catherine Hitchcock, native of England, believes she can do a lot of good in a little different line of endeavor. In Victoria during the week, she stated that her future life would be devoted to the promotion of the "moral rearmament religion" of the Oxford Movement, which she thinks is the answer to the present needs of a troubled world.

After visits to the United States and England, Miss Hitchcock hopes to return to the Far East, where the Oxford Movement has already attained considerable proportions and established itself, there being "groups" in Mukden, Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai, as well as in several Japanese centres.

She told a house party held at Mukden since the hostilities started between Japan and China, and said there were representatives from both China and Japan present, all possessed with the desire to promote ideals sought by Oxford groups.

Miss Hitchcock said she had resigned from the Y.W.C.A. work which she had started in Mukden twenty-two years ago because she believed that as a free agent she could do more for her belief than she could possibly do tied down in one place. This was the vital reason for her decision, she said.

COMMUNISM IS LECTURE TOPIC

Philosophy of Movement Is Expounded by Professor J. A. Irving

That the philosophy of Communism was a major case of wishful thinking, was the opinion expressed by J. A. Irving, professor of philosophy at the University of British Columbia, during the course of a University Extension lecture on the Communist theory of philosophy, delivered in the Central Junior High School last night. Professor Irving told of having asked Karl Radek, noted Communist writer, in Russia some years ago, when the Communist ideal, which envisaged the eventual of man living joyfully in a classless world, would come about, and receiving the rather vague answer that this ideal "looms through the dim and distant ages."

A graduate of Toronto, Princeton and Cambridge Universities, Professor Irving has studied Communism as a philosophical movement for many years, and in his lecture he traced the influences that guided Karl Marx in the compilation of his work, "Capital," upon which the Communist theory is based.

Expressing the view that Communism was a new world religion founded on philosophic principles which because of its complicated and philosophic nature must be accepted on faith, Professor Irving said that its object was the seizure of state power in order to declare the dictatorship of the proletariat, which the speaker said was "just one of those expressions." He illustrated how Lenin and Trotsky had applied the principles of "Capital," in seizing the state power at the time of the Russian Revolution in 1917.

Major Gilbert Holmes, chairman of the University Extension Association, introduced the speaker, and a silent tribute was paid to the memory of the late Dr. H. E. Young.

Indian Chief to Give Programme for City Schools

Chief Oskonen, Mohawk Indian, noted as a singer and entertainer, has arrived in the city to begin today a series of six programmes in Victoria schools. Two will be given today, two tomorrow, and two Friday, under the auspices of the school and community drama branch of the Department of Education, with the co-operation of George H. Deane, city school inspector, and Stanley Bulley.

This Indian chief left the Brantford, Ont., reserve when he was sixteen to go to New York. There his voice attracted attention, and he had an opportunity to develop it so that when the late David Bispham died he was chosen to succeed him as God's voice in the production of "Job." Still later he decided that he wanted to specialize in Hiawatha roles, and has appeared in such parts 260 times.

Three Points About Increasing Weight
By JAS. W. BARTON, M.D.
Whether it is a child or an adult that is below normal weight and an effort is being made to increase the weight, the first step should be a thorough examination by the family physician and dentist.
The physician will look into nose and throat to see if any tonsils, adenoids, or sinus trouble is present. If there is any infection in the throat that part of the food eaten and energy intake is being used to fight the infection and this energy is being lost to the body. If the youngster or adult is not getting enough rest, plays or exercises till the evening meal hour, he may be too tired to eat or to digest his food. If he remains up late at night it means that much more energy expended by the body and perhaps some of the body's tissues are used up to supply the energy. The kinds of food and the rate at which food is eaten will also be noted.
The family dentist will not only look for infection of teeth or gums, but will examine the chewing surface and see if the individual has enough grinding teeth to break up the food and get it well mixed with the mouth's digestive juices and saliva. The dentist also will inquire into the kinds of food eaten and may suggest more dairy foods, fruits and vegetables.
After this examination by physician and dentist, and the importance of rest has been emphasized, an upbuilding diet is then prescribed.
It must be remembered that in the case of the adult there is a twofold need: (a) enough food must be eaten to bring the weight up to normal, and (b) enough food also to keep it at normal. In the case of the underweight youngster there is really a threefold need: (a) enough food to bring it up to normal, (b) enough food to keep it at normal, and (c) enough food to supply the body with its needs for growth. In addition to the increased amount of food, all the foodstuffs—proteins, starches, fats, minerals and vitamins—must be eaten in sufficient amounts to supply the "complete" diet. Some helpful suggestions for underweight adults and underweight children are given by Kathleen Mitchell Thomas, director of dietetics, Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, in her book "Food in Health and Disease."
For adults: General instructions—Get eight or nine hours sleep every night. 2. Relax as much as possible. 3. Spend an hour or more of each day in the fresh air. 4. Exercise regularly.
Diet—1. Eat three warm meals at regular hours. 2. Take nourishment mid-morning and mid-afternoon unless it interferes with appetite for following regular meal. 3. Include the following foods in each day's diet: Milk, one and a half pints as a beverage or in cooking. Cream, half pint; eggs, one or two; meat, fish, or poultry, one or two servings; cheese as desired; fruit—any fresh or stewed fruit; have one raw fruit or vegetable a day; potato, with butter or gravy; plenty of cereals, rice, bread, crackers, macaroni; plenty of butter on bread and vegetables; liberal amounts of mayonnaise, oil, fats, and—Tigers, and will be awarded marks for team games, swimming, running relays, ability to do calisthenics, gymnasium competitions, deportment, attendance and discipline.

Arriving at a strange hotel, a fuzzy woman thought she'd better know where the fire-escape was. So she started exploring.

During her tour, she opened a door and found herself in a bathroom occupied by an elderly gentleman.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" she twittered, "I was looking for the fire-escape."

Continuing her search, presently she heard the pad of bare feet behind her and a shout made her turn. It was the elderly man, clad in a bath towel.

"Wait a minute!" he gasped. "Where's the fire?"

Smart Dances Presented At Hallowe'en Cabaret

Ted and Mary Taft, musical comedy dancers, who are on their way South on a tour in the West, received enthusiastic applause at the conclusion of their numbers presented during the Hallowe'en cabaret held last evening in the crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Featuring the high kick, the dance team presented a group of smart swing arrangements among them being a modern version of a Scottish dance routine, which they danced to the music of such popular Scotch airs as "Loch Lomond" and "Comin' Through the Rye." "The Indian Love Call" was interpreted in the same manner, as was also the square dance, for which the music "Turkey in the Straw" was played. The dancers were generous with their encores, and Miss Taft appeared in several solo numbers, a favorite being a Hawaiian hula dance, for which the song "I'd Like to See Samson of Samos" was sung by Harry Holder, of the Empress Hotel orchestra.

STRIKING GOWNS

Miss Taft wore a graceful white chiffon frock for her first number, the hem of which was applied with black lace, while the gown worn in the second half of the programme was of ice blue satin, the full skirt having hand-blocked flowers around the hem. This frock was outlined with sequins which sparkled in the graceful rhythm of the dance.

Mr. William Tickle and his Empress Hotel orchestra featured such numbers as "Sister Brim," "The Little Man Who Wasn't There" and "Boogie Woogie" in his programme of musical hits and old-time favorites.

The ballroom was festive with Hallowe'en decorations and the tables attractive with favors and autumn flowers. At either side of the orchestra platform had been placed huge black Hallowe'en cats. A jolly crowd enjoyed the fun of the dance until a late hour. Among the larger parties making reservations were Mr. N. Collinson, with a party of ten; Mr. Lorne Campbell, twelve; Mr. A. P. Dawe, six; Mr. D. Martin, ten; Lieut. Knox, ten; Major and Mrs. J. N. Edgar, Major and Mrs. Henry L. Sherwood, Captain and Mrs. Andrew Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. George Melrose, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cash, Colonel Rolston and Mrs. Burton Macdonald.

Clubs-Societies

Hallowe'en Party

The spirit of Hallowe'en was effectively carried out on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. M. Carter, 1017 Pandora Avenue, when Mesdames Carter and Spaven were hostesses to members of Chapter No. 25, Women of the Moose. With all lights dimmed, the black and orange color scheme and spider webs stretched across the corners of the room created a weird atmosphere. Guests were greeted by ghosts and were put through mock initiations, followed by "spooky" contests, which were won by Mesdames E. Christensen, E. Marcheson, R. Panting, B. Harper, Archer and E. Jane. Miss B. Merton won the prize for the original costume, and Mrs. Van Alpen won the prize for the best comic costume. In honor of five members who had birthdays during the month, the senior regent, Mrs. M. Carter, presented each with a small gift. Mesdames M. Carter, W. Spaven and A. Bird served supper from a table arranged with black and orange tapers.

Gordon Head Club

An encouraging sign of the desire of Victoria women to help their country in any capacity for which they were fitted was seen in the fact that more than 5,000 women had filled forms under the recent Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women plan, said Mrs. H. P. Hodges in her talk to the Gordon Head Current Events Club at its meeting in the Gordon Head Hall on Monday. She urged her audience to do all they could to counteract the effect of propaganda which was so prevalent, and to think of after the war as well as the present time. Every one must be prepared for sacrifice both now and later. Mrs. N. C. Bell gave a resume of current events. The soloist, Mrs. Bishop, sang "When You Come Home" and "O Heart of Mine." Mrs. Paddon being her accompanist.

Her corsage bouquet was of pink roses, and she was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth Rutherford, as bridesmaid, who wore a navy blue tailored suit with matching accessories and a corsage bouquet.

Gordon Appleton was best man, and the usher was the bride's young brother, Master John Rutherford.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, where the bride and groom stood beneath a dainty canopy of white streamers. From the centre of which hung a large wedding bell to receive the guests. Baskets of blue Michaelmas daisies, white dahlias and yellow chrysanthemums were placed at either side of the canopy, and assisting the young couple in receiving were their mothers, who both wore brown silk crepe frocks, on which were pinned their corsage bouquets of white gardenias and pink roses. A buffet luncheon was served from a table flanked with white tapers in silver holders and vases of pink and yellow roses.

The bride and groom left by the afternoon boat for Seattle, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride donned a wool champagne coat with matching fur over her wedding suit. Upon their return they will make their home in Victoria.

Beaux-Arts Have Jolly Hallowe'en

Hallowe'en was celebrated until an early hour this morning by about 150 members and friends of the Beaux-Arts Society, whose annual party was held in the clubrooms, Duchess and Leighton Streets. Guests arriving at the clubrooms entered by way of a dark passage with "spooky" and uncanny hands clutching at them. Around the walls in the auditorium were ghosts electrically illuminated, and throughout the evening weird noises were heard and unexpected Hallowe'en "spirits" appeared. Dancing was enjoyed and bingo, dart-throwing and the numerous Hallowe'en games and pranks were entered into wholeheartedly. A buffet supper was served.

Mr. Cedric Lefevre was general convener of the party, with the assistance of the following committee: Misses Bobby Thatcher, Jean Macdonald, Mary Lindgren, Audrey Eberts, Jean Bristow, and Messrs. George Cameron, Don Porter, Dennis Harris and E. Savannah.

Girl Guide Notes

WEST VICTORIA
The 4th West Victoria Guides were hostesses on Monday evening to a party of Brownies from the 2nd West Victoria Pack, who paid a visit, accompanied by their leaders, Mrs. Ashley Cooper and Mrs. D. B. An amusing hat-making contest was followed by a grand march. The prize winners were Joan Gossman, Pat Chapman, Elaine Inley and Dillys Jones. Guides and Brownies then formed a "horseshoe" and circle, respectively, and the Brownies "demonstrated" their Brownie song and Grand Hosi. Following which presentations were made as follows: Service stars, Beryl Barker and Jessie Edmonds; second's stripe, Annie Colles; patrol leader's stripe, Jessie Edmonds. A special prize was awarded to Betty White for one year's perfect attendance. These presentations were made by Mrs. Frank Sampson, captain of the Social and Personal Ostrich Plumes as Trimming

The war having caused the cancellation of the customary state dinner and ball following the opening of the Legislature, Hon. E. W. Hamber, Lieutenant-Governor, and Mrs. Hamber were hosts yesterday afternoon at a reception at Government House, to which the Cabinet Ministers and members of the Legislature and their wives were invited.

The reception was attended by about 200 guests, who were received in the drawing-room by His Honor and Mrs. Hamber.

Mrs. Hamber wore a beautiful floor-length gown of deep wine crepe with sequin trimming at the neckline, the skirt being full and graceful. In attendance upon His Honor and Mrs. Hamber were Brigadier J. Sutherland Brown, Lieut. Col. Maurice Turner, Col. J. R. Kingham, Lieut. Col. Vincent McKenna, Lieut. Col. Hugh Allan, Lieutenant-Commander C. E. Donaldson, Capt. N. Van der Vliet, Capt. W. H. Molson and Mr. Hew Paterson.

The drawing-room was arranged with quantities of exquisite chrysanthemums in shades of bronze and yellow, while in the ballroom, in which refreshments were served from long tables, chrysanthemums in shades of pink and mauve predominated. During the tea hour an appropriate musical programme was played by an orchestra.

Shower for Bride.

Mrs. G. H. Adlington entertained at her home, 328 Bechley Avenue, recently in honor of Mrs. Ken Cosby, a recent bride. The guest of honor was led into the room by Joyce Adlington, dressed as a fairy, and the gifts were wheeled in by Lorraine Parkinson and delivered by Master George Adlington. Games and music were enjoyed, and prizes were won by Mesdames F. Newall, E. Parkinson, Cosby and Miss Lorraine Parkinson. The reception rooms were decorated with white streamers and silver icicles, and the bride sat beneath an arch of white streamers and decorated with wedding bells. A buffet supper was served from a table covered with a hand crocheted and linen cloth and centered with the bride's cake and pink tapers in silver holders. Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were used in the reception rooms. Those present were Mesdames B. Cosby, F. Newall, H. Holt, G. Adlington, E. Parkinson, M. Young, R. Huntley, Misses J. Pettigall, Joyce Adlington, Lorraine Parkinson; Messrs. K. Cosby, B. Cosby, G. Huntley, H. Small, H. Holt, G. Adlington and Master George Adlington.

Miss Applegate and her mother received "cottage bouquets" of pink carnations, and on behalf of the assembled group, Miss Marjorie Fraser presented the bride-to-be with a handsome reversible blanket. The evening was spent in music and games, the winners being Mr. W. B. Colvin, Mr. H. Holstein and Mr. Lionel Walter. Those present were Professor and Mrs. J. B. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crabbe, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Applegate, Mr. and Mrs. H. Warren, Mesdames L. Macdonald, S. Fraser, C. The bride received a cottage bouquet of pink carnations, and the gifts were in a pretty-decorated hallowe'en clothes hamper. Hallowe'en colors were used in the decoration of the rooms. Games were won by Mesdames C. Kohl, A. MacMillan, Young and Miss Masfay Gootenka. Supper was served from a table centered with amber chrysanthemums between orange tapers in silver sconces. The invited guests were Mesdames W. McAlpine, Harknett, Hogan, Atkinson, G. Ford, A. MacMillan, C. Kohl, J. Morgan, T. Mitchell, J. Kinsman, D. Cox, E. Wells, H. Dyer, K. Miller, N. Hogan, Young, F. Anniversary Party.

The guests enjoyed cards, games and Chinese checkers during the evening. Later a buffet supper was served from a lace-covered table centered with the anniversary cake. Answer Roll By Quoting From Author Ready familiarity with Kipling's prose and poetry was shown by members of the Victoria Kipling Society who attended the second meeting of the season, held last night at 301 Union Building. Each person in responding to the roll-call had to give a Kipling quotation, the source of which other members had to cite.

The first fifteen minutes were occupied with the broadcast by Mrs. M. Barclay of "The Return of Imray," one of Kipling's ghost stories, relayed to the hall from the broadcasting station. Other items were the reading by Mrs. D. M. P. McCarter of sections from Kipling's "The Debt," and the reading by Mrs. M. Haney, assisted by the president, A. E. G. Cornwell, of a paper which appeared in the last number of The Kipling Journal. Mrs. Cheer read from the last edition of "Rudyard Kipling's Inclusive Verse" the poem on "Chartres Windows."

Reporting concerning the regular Tuesday evening broadcasts, Mrs. Barclay stated that the series was to be continued until next May.

"Kipling and British Columbia" was announced as the subject for the November meeting when T. A. Simmonds will show lantern slides illustrating the theme, and there will be other speakers. It was decided to hold the annual dinner about the end of December. The room was appropriately decorated in the Hallowe'en motif.

Peter Doesn't Dare Go Home

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

There have been many, many times when Peter Rabbit has dared go home to the dear Old Briar Patch. Yes, sir, there have been many such times. There have been times when he knew that Reddy or old Granny Fox or Old Man Coyote was hiding to catch him on the way. There have been times when Reddy, the Hawk or his cousin, Roughleg, sat just where it was impossible for any one to cross from the Green Forest to the dear Old Briar Patch without being seen. On such occasions Peter remained in a bramble-tangle on the edge of the Green Forest while Mrs. Peter worried at home.

Every one of these times it was on his own account that Peter had not dared go home. There were other times when Peter had stayed away a great deal longer than he should have, and dreaded to go home and try to explain things to little Mrs. Peter. Yes, indeed, there had been many such times. But never had Peter worried about going home for any such reason as was worrying him now. And this time there wasn't the least bit of selfishness concerned. He wasn't thinking of himself at all.

You see he had just saved the eggs of Mrs. Slow Poke the Box Turtle. He had saved them from being found and eaten by Uncle Billy Possum, and had done it in a very clever way. Indeed, he had been so very clever that he was quite puffed up with his own cleverness, and he was in a hurry to get home and tell little Mrs. Peter all about it. You remember that he had seen Mrs. Slow Poke bury those eggs and then he had seen Uncle Billy Possum hunt for them. When Uncle Billy had headed straight towards the place where those eggs were, Peter had hopped over and had sat down on that very spot. Of course, with Peter sitting there, Uncle Billy couldn't see that the ground had been freshly disturbed right there, so, of course, he didn't find the eggs.

When at last Uncle Billy gave up and went on about his business, Peter sighed. It was a long sigh of relief.

"Now," thought Peter, "I'll hurry home and tell Mrs. Peter all about it." Off he started, lipperty-lipperty, as fast as he could go. There he remembered that Uncle Billy had turned Mrs. Slow Poke over on her back, and Peter knew how hard it would be for her to turn back again. So Peter hurried back to her and turned her over. She opened her eyes and said: "Did that No-Account Possum find my eggs?"

front door slowly and cautiously peeped out.

"Thank you," said she. "Thank you very much, Peter. Did that no-account Possum find my eggs?" There was an anxious note in her voice.

"No," said Peter. "He didn't. Then he began to chuckle. 'He didn't, because I sat on 'em. I swan I sat on the place where they are buried.'"

Mrs. Slow Poke smiled with her eyes. You know she couldn't possibly smile with her lips because they are hard and horny.

"Thank you again, Peter," said she. "Now I think it will be best if I get away from here as fast as possible."

"What! Go and leave those eggs!" cried Peter.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Slow Poke. "It is the best way. If I am seen around here some folks will suspect right away that those eggs are near here. But if I am not around here no one will think to look for them. So now I'll hurry away. Good-bye."

Peter had to grin as he watched Mrs. Slow Poke hurry. It was the slowest kind of hurrying, but it was hurrying to her. He saw that there was some truth in what she had said, but somehow he couldn't bear to think of leaving those eggs unguarded. So he crept into his favorite place in the bramble-tangle close by and thought the whole matter over.

"I don't dare go home," said he, finally. "I don't dare do it. If I should, something might happen to those eggs. I guess I'll have to stay right here for a while anyway."

Bullish Tinge in New York Mart Speedily Fades

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—The stock market today closed the books of October with a slight loss, but the month about where it started.

Strong buying in aircraft at the day's opening gave the list an initial bullish tinge, but this was short-lived. Aside from a handful of specialties, leading issues refused to follow the aviation, and around noon, a selling wave knocked down steel, motors and other groups fractions to more than 2 points.

Offerings soon dried up, however, and dealings moved at a slow jog throughout the remainder of the proceedings. Several aircraft, which canceled their gains on the mid-day slide, recovered fractional net advances at the close.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was off .5 of a point of the day at 52.6. A month ago the composite stood at 52.3. Transfers for the five hours totaled 1,015,562 shares, compared with 638,870 yesterday.

A. M. Byers was an isolated strong spot at a new year's high. Loew's and Sears Roebuck held modest improvement.

On the losing side were Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Santa Fe, Du Pont, General Electric, Westinghouse, Anaconda, U.S. Gypsum, Montgomery Ward, American Sugar Refining and Eastman Kodak.

United States Government bonds today showed gains as great as 25-32 of a point. Rails were lower. South American bonds tilted up fractions to 1 or more. French 7's of 1919, stamped, were up 5. Fractions to 1 or more advanced were Brazil 6-1/2's at 15, Canada 4's at 97, Colombia 4's of (October) 1961 at 25 1/2 and Uruguay 3 3/4's, 4's and 4 1/2's of 1979 at 43 7/8.

CRIME TEARS ON CAROL WELLS

CHAPTER XXXIII

"I'll change it, certainly."

"What's all this about your name?"

Is it a new cult you're talking about?"

Not a cult, just a fad. And I don't think it's numerology exactly, but some word like that. If your name is out of harmony with your soul, you should change it. They, the society, tell you what name to use."

"For what result?"

"Oh, for your general betterment and happier living. I'll send for their book for you, if you want it."

"Yes, do. I like new fads. Now, about the pearls. You can't have left them here in your room, since they are not here now. You must have taken them with you and lost them, or—left them in New York."

"Do you mean I have stolen them?"

Avis did not raise her voice, but resentment and rising wrath were expressed in her face.

"I shall not think so until you give the necklace to me at once. It is not in the jewel case. Where is it?"

"I do not know. You lent me the necklace to wear last evening. It was a kindly thought, and I should have given it back to you before I slept. But I forgot to do so, and when I took it off, here in my room, I thought I would take it to you then. But I disliked to disturb you, so I left it till morning. This morning I overslept a little, and had only time to get off to New York for my appointment."

"What was your appointment?"

Avis raised her brows a little.

"To meet my manager, who wanted to tell me of a new picture he has in mind to produce."

"And you ran off giving no thought of the Madison pearls? I'm sorry that I have to feel a slight doubt—but the servants here are absolutely above suspicion. I hate to think ill of you, but—"

Cornelia broke down and dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief.

"Don't do that!" cried Avis; "why, your eyes are all red and inflamed. Here, let me help you."

She ran to her bathroom, and came back with some healing lotion and some cotton pads. She made the application and was so gentle and sympathetic that Cornelia forgot her anger and received the ministrations gratefully.

"Now Miss Cornelia," Avis said, "let me tell you once for all that I have not stolen your pearls. That I have not the slightest idea where they are, but that I shall be glad to help you find them, and if we can't do that, why not ask Fleming Stone to do so? Surely a detective of his standing could accomplish that. Let's go and see him about it."

"No, I'll call him to us here," Cornelia rang a bell and gave orders that Mrs. Stone come up to Miss Vera's rooms when at leisure. Soon the detective was with them.

"I am asking your help, Mr. Stone," Avis said, "for I fear I am under suspicion of a theft of which I am entirely innocent."

"You are referring to the Madison pearls?" Stone asked.

"Yes; this morning when I went to New York I left them in that jewel case over there, and I return to find them missing and myself under suspicion of stealing them."

"Oh, now, now, Avis, I didn't say that," and Cornelia looked embarrassed.

"Then what did you say?"

"I said you might have mislaid them. You might have thought you put them there, when really you put them in some other box or drawer."

Fleming Stone put his hand in his pocket and brought out a handful of white, softly brilliant pearls.

"Could these be the ones?" he said, smiling.

"Oh, yes!" Cornelia held out her hands for them. "Where did you find them?"

"You ought to have known. Where would you expect them to be, if not in their rightful place? Where were they often, not in your possession, but with your full consent, in another's?"

"I don't know what you mean," Cornelia said, looking really puzzled.

"Well, Miss Madison, I found the Madison necklace hanging around the neck of your cook, Mrs. Quinn, as she was working over the fire in your kitchen."

"Now, how did you ever think of that?" Cornelia exclaimed.

"I didn't. One of the detectives from the 'Homestead Bureau'—the house full of them—came to me and said the cook was wearing magnificent pearls under her dress. She beamed with smiles, took them right off and handed them over."

"Yes, she talks very little English. Avis, dear, I am sorry if I was rude to you, but you must forgive me. I am under a great stress."

"Yes, I know you are, Miss Cornelia, but I don't quite understand. Did Mrs. Quinn take the pearls from here?"

"I suppose so," Cornelia said carelessly.

"She picks them up any-where."

"And wears them?"

"Oh, yes, I want her to."

Stone was blankly amazed.

"Why do you want her to wear your jewels, Miss Madison?" Stone asked.

"Oh, I thought you knew that. Why, you see, pearls lose their luster and go dull and lifeless unless they are much of the time in a very warm place. So Mrs. Quinn wears my pearls under her dress a good deal of the time—enough to keep them in proper condition. She is always in the kitchen, and often standing over the stove, and the pearls respond to the heat and keep their beautiful sheen. It is understood she is to take them any morning after I have worn them the night before."

"And you forgot that the cook might have them?" Avis asked.

"Yes, I did," and Cornelia looked apologetic.

What Today Means

"SCORPIO"

If November 1 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a.m., from 6:45 to 8:15 p.m., and from 10:15 p.m. until midnight.

An unconscious tendency to be snobbish is apt to be back of the rude actions of the average individual this day. Wherever Al Saints' Day is observed a distinctly religious atmosphere may prevail, and directly or indirectly influence the activities and actions of numerous people. Many persons will have dimetrically opposite mental reactions, which will be manifested by displays of varying degrees of happiness or sadness. Discard opposing thoughts and you may be surprised at the number of pleasant ones that you will have. Ambitious conditions are apt to exist for those who have monetary problems to solve, and Lady Luck may take a hand in helping to smooth out many difficult situations. Married and engaged couples, and those making voluble protestations of love, must be careful not to give offence by making tactless remarks. If you are a woman and November 1 is your birthday, it might be well for you to remember that constant excessive energy is liable to fatigue you, and also persons who are subjected to its strenuous methods. Do whatever you have to do with moderation, and you will be the gainer. You apparently will conquer many heads, enjoying the loyalty of friendships and the admiration of many men and women. Through your activities in politics, school work, dramatics, writing or some commercial enterprise you may be well compensated by the position you attain and the money earned. In every respect your marriage ought to turn out well. The child born on November 1 is generally endowed with some of Nature's choicest gifts, chief among them being an admirable disposition. The majority of such children encounter few difficulties in making their way successfully through life. If you are a man and November 1 is your natal day, you will probably overcome your faults and become successful if you learn to know yourself. Among the activities that should offer many remarkable opportunities for your advancement are the legal, medical, literary, theatrical, theological and specialized branches of the scientific professions. A little burning is a dangerous thing.

NOMINATED FOR KIWANIS CLUB

Next Year's Executive Will Be Elected in Two Weeks' Time

The Kiwanis Club, in preparation for the election of officers for the ensuing year, which will be held on November 14, nominated candidates yesterday on the report of the nominating committee. Up to the opening of the meeting next week additional nominations may be submitted by the members for the various offices in addition to those reported upon by the committee yesterday.

The nominations submitted were as follows: For president, Frank Paulding and Darrell Spence; for vice-president, William MacDonald, T. P. Waters, for treasurer, Arthur Dowell and Archie Stuckey; for directors, William Bayliss, E. Cabell, A. Campbell, Harry Douglas, J. Glover, E. Hamilton, Robert Hibernson, Norman Hill, John Langdon, Victor Leigh, Gordon McClure, Neil Pollock, and Joseph Walsh.

NOVEL PROGRAMME
The programme at yesterday's luncheon in the Empress Hotel was of a novel character, under the charge of Arnold McDermid and William Lawson. Taking part in a guessing contest were Max Lawson, Murray MacIndale, William Bayliss, Richard Jenkins and E. Mallek, impersonating ladies and a fittingly robed for the occasion, and Arnold McDermid, Darrell Spence, William Tickle, Ralph Matthews and Reg Williams, who represented the male section.

Harold Digson, on the conclusion of the programme, presented prizes to the contestants. G. H. Stevens, during the luncheon, presented prizes won in the golf tournament of the club. Arthur Dowell carried off the cup for the best score. Other winners of prizes were Darrell Spence, Glen Hope, Frank Paulding, Alex McDermid, Ian Malcolm and Archie Stuckey.

It is anticipated that judgment will be handed down by the Court of Appeal at Vancouver next Tuesday in some of the following thirteen cases heard here in which decision was reserved:

Peter Chesworth vs. Canadian Northern Pacific Railway; Western Cyanide Products vs. Penitentiary Savings Ltd.; Des Brisay vs. Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Don Ingram, Ltd. vs. General Securities, Ltd.; Kennedy et al. vs. Union Estates Ltd.; Lin Dong Sheng vs. Lim Hin Jack; Hughes vs. Carlos; Elliott vs. Worthing; The King vs. Lim Fook Wing; Mayell vs. Mayell; Howell vs. Wallace; Silver vs. Cummins; Turner's Dairy, Ltd. vs. Lower Mainland Dairy Products Board.

WILL TAKE ACTION IN BRIDGE MISHAP
Action will be brought against the city by Mrs. Margaret Lee Warner, 824 Selkirk Avenue, for injuries sustained at 3:15 p.m. on October 21 at the Johnson Street Bridge, according to notice filed at the City Hall yesterday by Crease & Crease, solicitors.

Mrs. Warner was injured when an automobile in which she rode dropped off the end of the bridge span, then about to be raised.

THEIR TURN
"Do you watch your step when crossing the street?" To which the brunette snapped, "No, but all the men do."
